Appendix 1: The Christianity Conversation

Perhaps one of the better ways to show correct versus incorrect views is to have a dialog between two people who hold different views...

Appendix 3: Reference: Basic Teachings of The Light

- God exists, and that creator loves the people of the earth whom He created;
- Our creator is not a God of wrath or anger or vengeance but rather a God of love and compassion;
- Joshua of Nazareth was the unique Messenger of the creator to the point of calling himself the creator's Son and the Model for mankind i.e. "the Son of Man";
- Through faith in, and faithfulness to, Joshua and his Father, the Creator, a person can escape the cage of self-pride and fear and selfishness and enter into eternal life and thus preserve and enhance their existence after their body dies;
- Love is the most important "thing" the creator gave humans the capacity to express, and He wants people to love each other more than anything else;
- Love does not exist or express itself in a vacuum, so truth and rightness are also extremely important "things" the creator wants us to pursue, know, value and practice;
- We are only to love God and other people, not things. We are to live to love others and thus we cannot work for money/material things and also live for, love and serve God and others; they are mutually exclusive—you cannot serve God and money or material things;

- The creator and His Messenger are against religion which destroys love and unity – “the traditions of men” and all God beliefs which have NO basis in the teachings of The Light of the world. Religion is a substitute for truth and love and rightness and works hard against the creator and his Son and their desire for love and unity among people;
- The primary belief traditions of men which keeps people away from the Light of the world is believing Paul’s teaching about the scripture and by substituting “the bible” for the person of Joshua of Nazareth, thus nullifying Joshua’s teachings with all the false statements about God and God’s character that are contained in the other sixty-two books of the protestant bible;
- The primary behavior tradition of men to substitute for actually doing what Joshua wants is the tradition of “going to church” which means spending a lot of money to build a building to meet in, hear moral sermons in, sing songs in, and do other rituals in;
- Human beings are not neutral or good, rather we have a predisposition to not do what is right and good for others – we are locked in a cage of self-pride and fear and thus selfishness and darkness. Only faith in the God of love can effectively set us free from our self-made cage;
- Most human beings cannot see their need to overcome their self-pride and fear and selfishness, and thus ignore and reject the creator and His desire for people to love one another. This produces what Joshua calls “the world” in his teachings—people who live selfish lives not truly caring about other people;
- Followers of Joshua will share his Life together with other followers—we will be one another’s true family and will live accordingly. We will be distinct groups of people living together and caring about and for each other and thus being the city on a hill and the little flocks;
- Joshua warned his first followers against “being deceived” or “being misled” several times and further warned that there will be many who come in his name and deceive many. There is only one Way to be sure to avoid that, and that is to make Joshua one’s Master as he asks, which means a person will have no other authority regarding who God is and what God wants other than Joshua of Nazareth via HIS words/teachings/truths in the four gospel books.
